MILLSAPS COLLEGE BULLETIN

The President's Report

I have the honor of presenting my first report as President of Millsaps College after almost a full year of service.

The year just closing has been a remarkably satisfying and interesting year. From every point of view, it has, I believe, been a profitable one.

At the very beginning of this report, I want to register my very profound gratitude to all those who have given to me such unqualified and complete support during this first year. My thanks go to the members of the Board of Trustees, to the Faculty and Staff of the College, and to a very fine student body. I am greatly indebted to Bishop Franklin, the District Superintendents and hundreds of pastors of the Jackson area of the Church, the alumni of the College and a host of loyal friends throughout the State and the Southland. Any man would be deeply humbled to receive such support and to sense such friendship. For such support and friendship, I shall be increasingly grateful.

If I approached my new position a year ago with fear, I move forward now with faith. If I came with apprehension, I continue with confidence. I came with little or no experience for an administrative position of such importance. I came only with a complete devotion to the College and to the cause of Christian Higher Education. I look to the future with reassurance and with a sense of impending victory, for I am aware of the help of God and of God's faithful laborers.

We are now living in a time when there is a growing appreciation of the Liberal Arts College. These are days when there is an increase of interest in the Church College. The problems are many and varied, and the solutions will not come easily. But the cause is worthy! Our College is strategically located. It will soon be possible for a child to begin elementary school at the new Power School, in Jackson, Mississippi, and, without moving more than two blocks, to complete work for an M. D. degree. God has blessed us with an ideal geographical position. The Methodist Church has the most marvelous opportunity for Christian Higher Education a Church could want. The future of the College will be assured.

In this report I propose to give a summary statement of the year just closing and a statement of the prospects for the year to come. These statements will be followed by a report of plans for a Greater Millsaps.

REVIEW OF SCHOOL YEAR 1952-53

Faculty

The members of the college faculty have worked diligently and faithfully during the year. Their loyalty to the new administration is gratifying.

We note with regret the resignations of Miss Frances Decell, Director of Women's Athletics, and Dr. E. C. Girvin, Professor of Biology. After two years' leave of absence, Mr. Platig, having resigned to accept another position, will not return.

Students

Enrollment for the academic year just closing has been good. It shows a slight increase over the previous year. The first semester the College registered a total of 687 students, of whom 662 were full-time students and 25 special students. The second semester shows 629 students, 609 full-time students and 20 special students. A further analysis of the enrollment is attached.

More important than statistics is the growth and development of the student. It is believed that for the students the year has seen an increase in wisdom as well as knowledge, a deepening of faith, an increase in vision, a lift of horizons, and a more intelligent appreciation of life's rich traditions.

The faculty and staff have endeavored through the year to make our student life pleasant and profitable. Faculty committees have worked on better dormitory life. Particular progress has been noted in improved morale in our men's dormitories. Special credit should go to Mrs. Helen Daniel, who has rendered outstanding service as house-mother. For student relaxation and recreation, television sets were installed in Galloway, Founders and Whitworth Halls.

Student activities have seen a good year. These include athletics, both inter-collegiate and intra-mural; dramatics; debating; journalism; Band and Singers; and professional and pre-professional honor groups. The Millsaps Singers made a successful twenty-day tour through the West. In addition, they made two week-end trips in the state. During the second semester the Band was under the direction of Mr. David Balius, a graduate in this year's class. Mr. Balius is to be commended for his splendid work. A fine year for the Band is anticipated for 1953-54.

During the first semester, 61 ministerial students were enrolled; in the second semester, there were 67. Only two Methodist colleges (Randolph-Macon and West Virginia Wesleyan) enroll more ministerial students than does Millsaps College.

The weekly chapel services have been helpful to our entire college community. Occasionally visitors are asked to speak. Students are in charge of an occasional service. The President has assumed responsibility for the Thursday chapel program.

One hundred forty-two students are eligible for degrees. Twenty completed their work in January and ninety-three in June; twenty-nine are scheduled to complete requirements for degrees in August of this year. A list of the candidates for the degrees is attached.

A number of the graduates will enter graduate schools. Twelve will enroll in theological seminaries, twenty-five in medical or dental schools. Three received graduate fellowships.

Miss Margueritte Denny received a Fulbright Scholarship and will study next year at the University of Toulouse in France. This is the second consecutive year a Millsaps graduate has received a Fulbright Scholarship. Last year's winner, Mr. Gaston Hall, has since been awarded a Rhodes Scholarship and will begin his study in September at St. John's College, Oxford University.

Millsaps College on the Air

A weekly radio program over Station WJDX was inaugurated in September. Both students and faculty members worked on preparing the program, and have participated in the broadcasts. The program is directed and produced by Mr. James J.

Livesay. The program is a public service by the College. Though it requires many hours of work, it is believed that through it the community has become better acquainted with the College.

Millsaps-University of Mississippi Center

This year was the second winter for the Millsaps-University of Mississippi Center program. Six hundred sixteen students have been enrolled. Though handicapped somewhat by not having a full-time Director, the Center has had a fair year. A director will be in the office after June 1. A better year in 1953-54 is expected. This cooperative program has great possibilities for the community, both in graduate and under-graduate work.

In the spring of this year, the Center was inspected by a committee from the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. The committee was primarily interested in the graduate program for which the University of Mississippi assumes responsibility. The report of the committee, however, calls attention to two weaknesses for which Millsaps College is responsible:

1. Additional library staff is needed.
2. Some Millsaps College faculty personnel are teaching 18 semester hours, three beyond the maximum allowed by the Southern Association.

Within a year the second matter can be corrected. The first matter should also be corrected.

Buildings and Grounds

Extensive repairs have been made during the past fiscal year. Last summer we painted the outside trim of Founders Hall and the Library Building, the front of Whitworth Hall, the Whitworth living room, several dormitory rooms in Founders Hall, the studios of the Music Hall, the Book Store, the basement floor of the Science Building, the inside of the Infirmary, the hallways of Burton and Galloway, the outside of all the buildings on Faculty Row, including Woollard Hall, and redecorated the interior of five faculty apartments.

In compliance with the request of several faculty members we installed acoustical ceilings in the classrooms of the Christian Center Building. Fluorescent lighting has been installed in a few classrooms and offices.

All of the campus area with the exception of the golf course has been treated with commercial fertilizer in accordance with directions of the local county agent. Certain areas around Murrah Hall, the Christian Center Building and the football field have been plowed up and reseeded. Flowering shrubs have been planted along the main drive facing North West Street. During the winter months twenty oak seedlings were planted in the area of the Library and Murrah Hall. Thirty-five elm trees of a new variety were planted in the area adjacent to North West Street.

A program combining traffic control with beautification has been started by placing low chain fencing along certain areas of the driveways. This phase of our campus work has been paid for by contributions of the Magnolia State Foundation, an organization of the employees of the Mississippi School Supply Company and its affiliates.

The total maintenance and repair costs for this fiscal year will be approximately $60,000. One-half of this amount has been spent for personal services, including janitors, maids, a night watchman, and all maintenance labor:

Painting cost approximately	$10,000
Plumbing and heating repair approximately	6,000
Electrical repair approximately	2,500
Miscellaneous general repair approximately	5,500
Janitor and building supplies approximately	2,000
Dormitory telephone service	1,500
New equipment for class rooms, buildings and grounds, approximately	3,000

Our buildings and ground maintenance amounts to 14.2% of total expenditures. If you add to this the cost of expired insurance and all utilities, you will find that we have spent 18.8% of our total budget for plant operation and maintenance.

In comparison with other colleges with fewer than 1,000 students, we find that Millsaps College spends 5% more than the average of these other schools. Investigation reveals that our campus is many times larger and our buildings are many years older than most schools used as a comparison.

Finances

It is believed that we will complete this fiscal year with a small surplus. Millsaps Day was again observed in most of the charges of both conferences. As of this date $37,022.27 has been received from 80% of the charges. It is significant that such a large percentage of our charges contributes to the College either by placing it in the annual budget or by taking a special offering on Millsaps Day.

Personal letters have gone from the President's office to every preacher whose charge has sent a gift. Letters also go to church treasurers when checks come directly from them.

Ministerial Scholarships

A total of $19,125 has been allocated during the year for scholarship aid for ministerial students. A small portion of this amount went for tuition scholarship for sons and daughters of ministers and faculty.

Public Relations

During the year a general concern for good public relations has been manifest. The satisfied student is our best means of public relations. By and large, the College has enjoyed success at this point.

The area has been strengthened with the addition of a full-time Director of Public Relations. His services are of great value.

Since July of last year, the President has spoken 180 times, in schools and churches, all over Mississippi. Appreciation should be expressed to both ministers and laymen for providing such opportunities to be heard on behalf of the College.

A number of faculty members have had outside speaking engagements, some of them carrying heavy schedules.

THE SCHOOL YEAR 1953-54

Administration

A year ago, Mr. Paul Hardin was elected Registrar for a year. His reappointment is recommended.

The resignation of Miss Carolyn Bufkin as assistant to the Registrar is noted with regret. For fifteen years Miss Bufkin has given devoted service to the College.

Dr. J. E. McCracken's appointment as Dean of Students was approved in February. Miss Mildred Morehead's appointment as Dean of Women was also approved in February.

Faculty

The position of the College will be slightly improved next year over the past year from the point of view of number of teachers. There is a great need for more improvement within the immediate future. Teaching loads are too heavy. One teacher this year had 209 students. Faculty committee duties and advisory work for student activities take a further toll on a small faculty's time and energy. It is our hope next year, under Dr. McCracken's leadership, to give special attention to counseling freshman students.

The need for additional and adequate office space for faculty is recognized. This provision would encourage more faculty-student conferences and increase the effectiveness of such conferences.

It is hoped that there can be a decided improvement in the immediate future in the faculty salary schedule.

Faculty Personnel

1. Professor Ferguson and Professor Prince will return next year to teach. Dr. Ferguson, who has been away on a year's post-doctoral study at Yale University, will teach in summer school. Mr. Prince will return in the fall.

2. The Reverend Robert Anding is recommended as Assistant Professor of Religion and Director of the Town and Country church program. Mr. Anding, a graduate of Millsaps College and Candler School of Theology, has taught part-time in the Department of Religion during the year just closing. He will direct the field work of all ministerial students and act as special counselor to that group. The College is being assisted in this program by the General Board of Missions and the General Board of Education.

3. Dr. N. Bond Fleming has been granted a Ford Fellowship for post-doctoral study at Harvard University. It is recommended that Dr. Fleming be granted a sabbatical leave from the College. It is further recommended that the Reverend Robert Bergmark be approved as Assistant Professor of Philosophy in Dr. Fleming's absence. Mr. Bergmark, a member of the Texas Conference of the Methodist Church, has a graduate degree from Boston University, with advanced work for his doctor's degree.

4. Recommendations will be made to the Instruction Committee of the Board about the positions in the Departments of Biology, Education and History.

Enrollment

Advanced enrollment for both summer school and the fall session are encouraging. As of today, the College has accepted 145 new students, as compared with 102 a year ago. There is good reason to believe that the College has enrolled some of Mississippi's outstanding young men and women. As of today, there are only 33 vacancies in our women's dormitories and 65 in our men's. Some increase in housing facilities must be anticipated in order to accommodate the students desiring to study at Millsaps College. The above-mentioned vacancies are for next year. It now appears that our dormitories may be filled by July 15.

Buildings and Grounds

Our plans for the coming year include redecoration of several faculty houses, redecoration of the interior of the Cafeteria, also Sullivan-Harrell Science Hall and the rooms of Whitworth Hall. We are making plans to paint the outside trim of Sullivan-Harrell Science Hall. In the men's dormitories we plan to install new plumbing fixtures, paint all the rooms that need it and build permanent study tables and bookshelves in each room. It appears desirable also to install electric outlets in each room.

A few of the improvements contemplated for future years include paving of the drive behind Faculty Row, establishing a parking area behind the Christian Center Building, establishing a parking area behind Sullivan-Harrell Science Hall, installing several window fans in the Library, and expanding our food service to include a short-order counter.

Finances

Support of the College by the churches and by individuals will be vigorously pushed.

The budget for the ensuing year has been submitted to the members of the Finance Committee and has their approval.

Greater Millsaps Movement

At the February meeting of the Board of Trustees, a committee was authorized to consider plans for strengthening the College. The President of the Board named a committee of thirty men and women, which first met on April 14.

The committee elected Dr. W. J. Cunningham as chairman and authorized a steering committee of eight, to be named by Dr. Cunningham and Mr. Ezelle, who served as temporary chairman of the original committee. The members of the committee in addition to Dr. Cunningham, Mr. Ezelle and the President of the College are W. E. Bufkin, A. B. Campbell, Bishop Marvin A. Franklin, James Hand, Jr., B. M. Hunt, W. L. Robinson, and W. B. Selah.

The steering committee has met twice. At the second meeting it was unanimously voted to ask the Boards of Education of the two annual conferences to request the conferences 1) to authorize a campaign to raise for the college in the remaining years of this quadrennium a million dollars; and 2) to request the Bishop of the area to name a committee of twenty-four men to work with the steering committee to develop the plans for the campaign. It is believed that the Boards of Education will present the report and that the conferences will adopt it.

The steering committee will continue to direct the program of studying the purpose of the College, its curriculum, its program, its opportunities.

Honorary Degrees for June, 1954

(Announcement about honorary degrees for next year will be made at a later date.)

RECOMMENDATIONS

It is recommended that:

1. The degrees for the candidates be awarded, when all the academic requirements have been met.

2. The report of the committee on Honorary Degrees be accepted.

3. Dr. N. Bond Fleming be granted a sabbatical leave for nine months beginning in September and the Reverend Robert Bergmark be named assistant professor for the same period.

4. The Reverend Robert Anding be named assistant professor of Religion and Director of Town and Country work.

5. Mr. Lance Goss be promoted to the rank of associate professor.

6. Miss Thomasina Blissard be named assistant to the Librarian and Instructor in English.

7. Mr. Harold Avery be named Director of the Millsaps College Band.

8. The budget be approved as adopted by the Finance Committee.

9. The faculty and staff be employed at the salary stated in the budget.

10. The Board of Trustees give complete support to and cooperate with the plans for strengthening the College.

11. This report as a whole be approved.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE BULLETIN

An Address

by

Bishop William T. Watkins, D.D.

Bishop Franklin, members of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences and friends of Millsaps College. This salutation embraces, I am certain, every person present, for there is no one here but is the warm friend of Millsaps.

It is a very genuine pleasure to be present today and have the privilege of addressing these two great conferences. I had the privilege in 1939 of presiding over these two conferences and I shall always recall the pleasant associations and the beginning of many friendships that have come out of that single contact.

I believe profoundly in what you are undertaking to do here today. I think the future of Methodism in Mississippi depends, in a measure we're not able today to accurately appraise, upon what we here today firmly resolve to do. When I say that I am not here primarily in the interest of Millsaps College, the statement may appear very strange, but that is the literal truth. I am here primarily in the interest of the Methodist Church because I believe it to be a powerful agency in setting up the Kingdom of God on earth. I have learned, as has every other man who has given half a thought to the matter, that the Methodist Church cannot operate without strong colleges. A college is not an end in itself, but always the means to an end greater than itself. We have a sister denomination of prominence which has historically tried the experiment of operating without colleges. But leaders of that Church assure me that they have long since recognized that vital mistake, and that they would today be a much stronger denomination had they built and maintained strong colleges. Certainly this Methodist Church which we all dearly love cannot operate without such colleges. That is what I mean when I say that I am here primarily in the interest of the Methodist Church. Every phase of its life and work depends upon what colleges alone can put into its life.

MILLSAPS-WILSON LIBRARY

Education is not mere knowledge. Of course, knowledge is an essential part of education, for unless our thought life has some correspondence with things as they are, we shall wreck ourselves on illusions, which we mistook for realities. But reality is a broader term than truth, just as personality is a broader term than intellect, and man can no more live by truth alone than he can live by bread alone. There are those realities to which we do not adjust ourselves as in the relation of knowledge to fact, but as will to principle, and as affection to that which is love. If men seize the immoral, if the affections take hold on the unlovely, the tragedy is even greater than when the intellect embraces error. If an individual leaves out of his world "whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely", there has been a failure in his education somewhere.

The aim of any education, unless it be the most technical, is to make the individual's world within correspond with the world of reality without. Christian education's difference is in that which it is willing to call real. The curriculum of Christian education is not narrower but broader than other education, for it does not apologize for calling God, Christ, and the Kingdom of God, realities. Christian education claims the same liberty in research, the same freedom in thought that belongs to any other type of education. It claims the same truths that the other forms of education have to impart. It lays claim to universal human knowledge from the oldest fact in history to the newest truth in science. Wherever truth is found, Christian education says we, too, believe and teach that. The Church wishes the State well in its educational endeavors, but it believes that under our American system, it is secular education and not Christian education that is restricted. Christian education alone is free to embrace the whole truth. It teaches, along with state controlled institutions, the truth that is in science, the truth that is in literature, the truth that is in history, but it teaches also the truth that is in Christ.

MILLSAPS-WILSON LIBRARY

Few men have questioned that Jesus of Nazareth stands supreme in the sphere of goodness and that that goodness is summarized in the Sermon on the Mount and is to be realized in the Kingdom of God. That conception stands peerless, unmatched, not even rivaled in the thought of men, as an order of perfected human relations. Mr. H. G. Wells has called the Kingdom of God the mightiest conception that ever entered the human mind. Jesus stands as the last word in the matter of human relation. His insight into human nature, his vision of the perfectability of human relation, lifted him into a sphere of thought where no mind since has been more than a mere echo. In this sphere he thought the final thought.

Slowly the individual, tardily the social order, painfully the nations are finding out that Jesus of Nazareth has out-thought them all. Into the sphere of human relations and social forces a Master has trod, bearing with Him the same authority as Copernicus in his sphere and claiming no other. That is the authority of truth. "If I speak the truth, then will ye believe."

If one of the functions of education is to enrich Man's conception of human relations, teach him how to live in a world where there are other people, and prepare him for service, then an education that is not Christian is as inadequate as geometry with the concept of space left out. As well teach astronomy with Copernicus left out or medicine with the germ theory left out, as to undertake to teach human relations and human goodness with Jesus left out. Any education that teaches mankind's discovery in truth, that teaches the beautiful in art and literature, that teaches the insights of the great minds of history and then leaves out the greatest figure of them all, the one whose life has influenced history most, the one whose thought is the most powerful factor in the life of the world today, and the one whose ideals are slowly but steadily shaping the life of the world, any such education, I say, cannot be "liberal". It is restricted education. It is sectarian education for it begins with a viewpoint and ends without having appraised certain spheres of truth. Christian education alone is free to deal with the total of reality.

From a practical viewpoint, I have just as much evidence that righteousness and moral principles are real as I have that gravitation is real. Actually, I have never seen, or heard, or handled, gravitation. But when I act on the assumption that it is not true, I get hurt. Broken bones and a bruised body are the inevitable result when I ignore gravitation. Therefore, long ago I decided to live according to gravitation to the best of my knowledge. Both men and nations just as certainly, just as inevitably get hurt when they leave moral principle and righteousness out of consideration as when they ignore gravitation. You can leave an illusion out of your life and that ends that. There isn't anything outside of you corresponding to your illusion to strike back, else it would not be an illusion in the first place. But when men leave a reality out of life it strikes back, because it has existence in itself. The world leaves brotherhood out of its life, and the reality which that truth stands for, strikes back in the terrible agonies inflicted upon mankind in its strifes and wars. The Christian way of life is not an illusion. It is not even just a beautiful ideal, it is reality to which life must adjust itself or pay the terrible cost that results when it is ignored.

MILLSAPS-WILSON LIBRARY
JACKSON, MISSISSIPPI

The reason I am so concerned with colleges of the type of Millsaps is that these colleges across America, usually rather small institutions, are the only educational institutions completely free to deal with the total of reality. Please do not misinterpret that statement. I appreciate what the state is doing in the field of education. In the state in which I live, the head of every educational institution in the state is my personal friend, and certainly I mean no reflection on what they are doing. Nevertheless, as they know, and I know, these state institutions operate under very definite limitations. In this country we are committed to the separation of church and state. Nobody wants that principle changed. We do not want the state teaching religion. If the state is to enter the field of religion, then just what interpretation of religion will it teach? It might not be your or my interpretation.

But alongside of this doctrine of the separation of church and state, there must be placed another thing which creates something of a paradox. Notwithstanding the fact that we in America are committed to the separation of church and state, at the same time religion is a fundamental part of the American tradition. From the Pilgrim fathers down to the founding fathers who wrote our Constitution, religion was not only a fundamental part of their way of life, but their very thoughts and political doctrines grew out of and were expressions of religious viewpoints. Your American political freedoms and doctrines are not secular products born in a political convention. They are the products of the Christian religion and its emphasis on the value of the individual, and more concretely, the product of the Protestant Reformation with its affirmation of the right of every man to stand on his own feet before God and interpret religion as his conscience dictated. This religious democracy was the mother of our political democracy. Our American way of life with all of its democratic freedoms is not a secular product. That is what I mean when I say that our American way of life, which we value so highly and are so greatly concerned about at the present time, has in it an essential religious element. Religion is a part of the American tradition and gave birth to the kind of democratic statehood we have.

I think I am now in position to make more emphatic what I mean when I say that I am not here in the interest of Millsaps College primarily. I am here in behalf of America and the Methodist Church. For America, my country, cannot preserve its way of life without that which the church alone has contributed and must continue to contribute, and the Methodist Church, your church and my church, cannot continue to make that contribution for American life without strong colleges. Stated in reverse it means that if the colleges die, the churches die, and if the churches die, the American way of life perishes. I am, therefore, here in behalf of my country and my church. In fact, I go even further than that. I am here in your behalf. I mean that I am here and now making an address in your behalf and in the behalf of your children and grandchildren. The kind of world your children and grandchildren are going to live in will be determined by what things are put in the educational system today. Never doubt that that is true. Give me the control of the colleges of this country, let me determine the curricula, and I promise you that I could make America anything - good or bad - in a single generation. That is how powerful education is in the life of a people.

We need to dwell upon this fact - that the power of education is such that it can change the face of any nation in a single generation.

About thirty years ago an Englishman by the name of Benjamin Kidd wrote a book the title of which was "The Science of Power".

MILLSAPS-WILSON LIBRARY
JACKSON, MISSISSIPPI

It was a book of great insight. The kind of power the author had in mind was not the kind involved in an atomic bomb, but the kind involved in those things that control the life and thought of a people. The thesis of the book was that people are what they are because of their social heritage. By the social heritage he meant the sum total of that which we receive through society from the ancestors who have gone before us. Our culture, our political scheme of life, our education, our religion, everything that goes to make up a total way of life, is our social heritage. Let us not feel too superior about ourselves. If we had been born in the interior of Africa we would believe what those black men there believe. We would be worshipping their tribal gods. We would hold to their superstition. The difference is in their social heritage and our social heritage. We were born heirs to a totally different scheme of values, and that is our social heritage.

And, said Mr. Kidd, you can change any people on earth in one generation by changing that social heritage. Change the things that men are handed as truth to be believed and you can change any people in a generation. Since Mr. Kidd wrote that book, I have seen two nations do just that thing. First of all, Hitler did it in Germany. He changed the social heritage. He broke with that old Germany of Martin Luther, who was the father of Protestantism, and gave German youth a different and a very pagan social heritage. He accomplished this in one academic generation and so changed the face of a nation that Germany may be said to have undergone a pagan re-birth. Japan did exactly the same thing. One generation of teaching made a peaceful people into, perhaps, the most militaristic nation on earth, and you have had these two nations to deal with at tremendous cost. Any nation, my friends, is always just one generation from paganism. Change the social heritage and you may change a nation in that brief a time. Change the educational system, the plan and content of what is taught to youth as truth, and you change a nation. Any nation can be so changed if you change its social heritage, and let us not get the notion that America cannot be changed!

It is a fact of tremendous importance, my friends, that the colleges of this country have that social heritage in their hands. Do you realize that? That you realize this truth is of supreme importance. This social heritage is not lodged in the business or industrial world. I respect the men of business and industry and all of that kind of thing as much as anybody, but this social heritage is not in their hands. It isn't in the hands of the professional men of this country and I respect them as much as do any of you. When I say that the colleges have our social heritage in their hands, I do not mean to make an absolute statement, but simply to say that they are the determining factor in this situation. Of course, the family transmits some of this heritage. Our social and political mores transmit some of it. Nevertheless, so far as the future of this country is concerned, this social heritage is in the hands of the colleges of this country.

It is easily possible to live amid the colleges and universities of the country, since they are about us from the days of our childhood and come to be taken as commonplace, and yet never adequately analyze the subtle power and influence of an educational institution.

MILLSAPS-WILSON LIBRARY
JACKSON, MISSISSIPPI

Of course, only a minority of our people go to college and while the influence of that minority is tremendous in its impact upon our social life, yet it is not precisely that that gives the college its great power over American life. The secret of the silent and subtle power and influence of a college, lies in the fact that the college teaches the teacher who teaches your child. In that simple statement lies the secret of tremendous power and influence. Not everyone goes to college, but everyone goes to school, and the influence on American youth of the teachers who help shape their life is beyond estimate. It is not a matter of what is in the curriculum, it is a matter of the influence and impact of one personality upon another. And these teachers have in their hands your children in the most formative period of their lives. More than half the graduates of these Christian colleges go into the teaching profession at some time in life and that is perhaps approximately true of all the colleges of all kinds in this Country. That is why we say that the colleges have this social heritage, this total collection of achieved values, in their hands as does no other institution of society. That is why more than all other influences, the colleges of America are going to determine the kind of world in which your children and grandchildren shall live. I come back over and over to the statement that I am not here simply on behalf of a college. The reason I want colleges is the need the Church has for them and the use it can make of them, and furthermore, the need my Country has for colleges that will keep alive the tradition that has made it great. I am here, primarily, in behalf of my Church, my Country, and in your behalf. The colleges are secondary in the sense that our primary loyalty is to something else, but they are primary in the sense that they are our most powerful instrument in shaping and fashioning the future into what we so greatly desire it to be.

I wish to say that while I am not over enthusiastic I am very optimistic about the prospects for higher education in the South in the almost immediate future. It is my confidence that a new day is dawning. This is not based merely on a wish, but in no small part of already achieved goals. Across the entire jurisdiction there is a ferment in this field of education and the Methodists are rising to a new high lev el in the support of their educational institutions. Nothing encourages a people more than the successful endeavors of their neighbors. In 1936, Emory University, which is owned by the entire jurisdiction, was a struggling young university with 10 million dollars of total resources. Today, the total resources of Emory University are almost 60 million dollars. I do not have a total figure of the colleges of the jurisdiction, but within the last 18 months my own area of three conferences has contributed in cash and subscription $3,625,000.00. Your own closest academic neighbor, Lambutth College, at Jackson, Tenn., last year asked its constituency, that is the Memphis Conference, for a million dollars for the college. The Methodists of the Memphis Conference gave in cash and subscription $1,335,000.00. Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina have in the recent past finished most successful campaigns for the support of their institutions. In process at the present time is a campaign in the Holston conference to be followed with a like campaign in the Tennessee Conference for a most substantial sum of money for the institutions of that area. I shall have the privilege next week of speaking to the Alabama and North Alabama Conferences which are engaged at the present moment in the same kind of effort you are engaged in to more adequately equip their educational institutions. The ferment is at work throughout the jurisdiction and there need, therefore, be no surprise that I come to you sounding a note of optimism and prediction that a new day is dawning for the South in the field of education. That the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences will definitely exceed the amount that is being askedfor in this campaign is a prediction I am bold enough to make at this moment. It is my confidence that you will go way beyond a million dollars in your support of Millsaps College.

I think it is a strategic moment for education in the South. I would like to elaborate that statement just a bit. I mean that there are some moments that are more significant than other moments in human affairs. Not all hours of time are equally important. And in the life of almost any institution there comes a moment when it either presses forward and tops the hill, or else it begins its decline. The institution that ends that strategic moment, tops the hill, finds later progress and easier achievement. It is the truth involved in the oft repeated theory that "nothing succeeds like success." Nothing is harder to promote than a failure. I believe that we are on the road to the dawn of imminent success for our total educational program in the Southeast and this is particularly true of Millsaps College. With the success of this campaign, Millsaps will, in a very real sense, push over the hilltop. Nothing inspires generosity in our people as does success. And when you have succeeded in this effort, as I confidently put it, you will, you will find that the next effort will be much easier. And let us not get the notion that there will not be a next time. There most certainly will be. Your grandchildren and great-grandchildren will be raising money for Millsaps College one hundred years from now. The moment for Millsaps is a strategic one, because this is the hour in which our success will make all future successes easier.

I have personally had a lot of contact with small denominational colleges and have known how much they mean to the church. If, for example, you take out of Georgia Methodism what old Emory College at Oxford, Georgia, put into it, what you have left is simply a picture that I cannot paint. I had the privilege of serving South Carolina Methodism for four years, and if you take out of that Methodism what Wofford College has put into it, you impoverish it to a degree that I am incapable of appraising. The same is true in Kentucky where I now serve. If you take out of Kentucky Methodism what Kentucky Wesleyan College has put into it, you would have a vastly different Methodism. And now suppose you make your own application of that principle here in Mississippi. Take out of Mississippi Methodism what Millsaps College and Millsaps College men have put into it, and you will discover that you are trying to make a deduction you are incapable of making. No man here can paint the picture of what Methodism in Mississippi would be if that contribution were deducted from its life. It is this fact of the qualities of essential contribution to the church plus the fact that the College now faces a day of opportunity greater than ever before that will inspire in our people the support that will makethe future of Millsaps not only secure but great. Nothing succeeds like success, and the very success and contribution of the college is its one greatest guarantee of a still greater contribution and a still greater success.

Permit me to recite two stories in completion. First, some three years ago a supremely important issue was before the Supreme Court of the United States. The entire nation waited with a certain restlessness to see what the decision would be. A leading lawyer of Kentucky in discussing the matter with me, and as nearly as I can recall his words said, "I am not uneasy. There are two men on the Supreme Bench, both Methodists and both educated in small Christian colleges - Chief Justice Vinson, educated at Center College, a small Presbyterian school, and Mr. Justice Reed, educated at Kentucky Wesleyan, a small Methodist school - and nobody is going to confuse those men." I cite that as an illustration of the fact that these small Christian colleges are influential in the nation's life out of all proportion to their size or numbers. As you work for Millsaps College in this campaign, you can look any man in the face with complete honesty and assure him that know of no place where he can invest his money that will yield larger returns in the future for the welfare of society.

And then there is one other assurance you can give to that man. It is that at life's end he will probably derive more satisfaction from what he may have invested in this kind of institution than from any other source. In this connection let me tell you an inspiring story. The college I attended had on its campus an old four-story building known as Seeney Hall. A splendid thing in its day, it is antiquated and outmoded now. But the story back of it is that George I. Seeney, a New York financier, back in the 1880's in the period of southern reconstruction got interested in southern educational institutions and gave large sums of money to some half dozen different southern schools. He built that four story building on the campus at old Emory, and that is why it is called Seeney Hall. Mr. Seeney later lost all of his money. He was, as we say, "wiped out," and he never made a financial recovery. But at the time Bishop Candler was president of Emory at Oxford, Georgia; Mr. Seeney, then an old man, visited these Southern schools where he had, in a former and more profitable stage, put his money. He visited Emory at Oxford, Georgia. He looked at that which his own money had built, and then uttered a statement that has been widely quoted, and which you doubtless have heard. He said, "You know all I have left in the world is what I gave away!" And that was the literal truth. All that Mr. Seeney had left was what he gave away. I don't think, and certainly I hope, that no such calamity will ever happen to you. I hope that each of you may always have something left. But, my friends, concerning these worldly means which we have, down the way in every man's life, there always comes the moment when the greatest satisfaction he had is not in what he has left, but in what he has contributed to human good. There will most certainly come in your life the moment when the greatest satisfaction you will have will be in what you did during the course of your life for the world of tomorrow.

To a man who may be considering a gift to Millsaps, whether large or small, I can give two assurances. First, that I know of no place you can put your money that would yield a greater total of human good to the future than these small Christian colleges. And secondly, I know of nothing you can do that will yield you greater personal satisfaction as you face the closing out of your life than what you have done toward helping shape the world in which your children and grandchildren will live.
